A laptop can support that too, the only inconvenient is that you can't really take those speakers along if you decide to go on a trip with your beloved newly purchased laptop. For music enthusiasts there's also the option of buying an audio card. These come in all shapes and sizes, but you can even produce or make music with them from your laptop. The technology has advanced in giant steps over the last decade, so don't be surprised about that. Also, if you want to record yourself singing or simply for interacting with other people all over the world, you can buy a microphone so then can hear you. The truth is that the internet revolution has brought major changes in the way we think, buy and communicate. And what better accessory for communicating with others via the internet than the webcam? The webcams show live video images of yourself to the people who you are talking to. Or, of course, it can be the other way around. It can be very useful for videoconferences or for simply getting in touch with your family and friends who long to see you. If you are making the transition from a standard computer to a laptop, you will immediately notice some difficulty when writing from a laptop keyboard. You will get over it after a while, and you will learn to appreciate the real benefits of a laptop. For example, if you want to go on a trip, what better way to make the voyage pass faster than doing some work on your trusty laptop? Or maybe you prefer playing a game. However you look at it, a laptop is a very convenient accessory in itself. As a conclusion, either you want just a few or the entire set of accessories, you really need to think whether you will take full advantage of them or not. There's no point in buying a stack of accessories for your beloved laptop but not using them.
